*** Items of Interest ***

- 1.) The next general club meeting will be held on September 14 at our regular meeting place at the Steinmetz Park Rec Hall.
- 2.) The Reproduction Presentation scheduled for the September meeting will be substituted with a different presentation. The substitute presentation will be How the Bulldog is Viewed by the Public by Dr. Michael Hughes. This presentation was inspired by the AKC Parent Breed Club Conference that Dr. Michael Hughes attended in August so it will be very interesting. Don't miss out!
- 3.) Nominations for the three Board of Directors seats will open at the September meeting.
- 4.) The October General Club meeting will be held on Saturday October 8th along with the AKC Sanctioned B Match, the Breeders Match and the Chili-Cook Off. The meeting/matches will be held at the Northkirk Presbyterian Church (See the ad in this Bullpup issue).
- 5.) The PCBC has a Facebook page. If you search Pacific Coast Bulldog Club you should find it. Friend it today.
- 6.) Check out the new format for the PCBC web site that Mike Lerchenmuller has been working on. While the content is basically the same, the design is new. Mike is looking for photographs to start updating the Album section. If you have pictures of Bulldogs that you would like to share, please feel free to email them to webmaster@thepcbc.org. Show pictures and fun still shots would be good. If you have any suggestions on adding something to the website please let him know.
- 7.) If you are planning to breed your bully, don't forget to enter your litter for next year's Futurity Stakes Match.
- 8.) Congratulations to all the winners of the recent shows. You can see the results in the "Show Results" section.
- 9.) Last year the BCA Div III Rescue experienced a large number of attained dogs. Hopefully with on going education, responsible breeders, and your support, these numbers will not continue to grow. Rescue is looking for anyone willing to help on temporary basis. Any aide you can provide would be greatly appreciated. Please contact Ken Haefliger, BCA Div. III Rescue Coordinator at (805) 496-9589.

quality nutrients out of it. However; most people don't want kisses from potty-mouthed dogs. If you catch your pooch in the act, offer tastier food as a distraction.

Rolling in Garbage

If you see a decaying animal or a pile of garbage, your instinct is to step around it but, your dog's greatest desire is to roll in it. The more foul the smell, the stronger the lure. One theory is that dogs like to cover their own scent with the horrible odors to make it easier to surprise prey. You probably can't curb your dog's interest in this pastime so, your best hope is to spot smelly things first and steer your pal clear.

Drizzling

If your dog salivates when you're grilling steaks, that's as it should be. But drooling throughout the day is not normal, Reid says. Excessive drooling may signal a wide range of medical problems, including illness or a reaction to something in the environment. If it occurs with behavioral problems, such as chewing or hiding, drooling can also be a symptom of anxiety. In short, an abundance of dog drool warrants a trip to the veterinarian.

Herding

Some dogs will try to herd anything – cats, ducks, even your kids. "They were bred to do this, Reid explains. "They naturally want to move things around, collect things, stop the chaos. It's a behavior they desperately need to express because everything in their genetic makeup is telling them to do this." While the behavior is not abnormal, it can become problematic. With training, dogs can learn to herd only when appropriate.

Humping

Watching your dog get personal with the new sofa may make you cringe, but it's not abnormal. Any dogs discover that humping feels good or relieves stress so, they keep at it. Both males and females are known to indulge in this behavior, though males do it more often. Reid says it's fine to look the other way in most cases. "But, if they're humping family members or guests who come to the house, behavior modification is in order.

Reverse Sneezing

Sometimes your dog may make a loud snorting or inhaling sound that's best described as reverse sneezing. During a reverse sneeze, which usually lasts about a minute, your dog may stiffen his stance and extend his head, and his eyes may bulge. Although the episode may be unnerving, it's usually caused by something harmless, such as leash pulling or excitement. Massaging your dog's throat, offering him something to lick, or placing your fingers over his nostrils may cause him to swallow, which may stop the sneeze. Check with your veterinarian if it happens often. It may be a sign of allergies, mites, infection, foreign body, or another medical condition.

Eating Grass

Your lawn may not look like a gourmet meal to you but, your dog has other ideas. Canines are omnivorous, Reid explains, meaning they like vegetation in addition to meat. Eating grass, sticks and even dirt is normal – in moderation. If your dog binges on grass, it may be a sign of an upset stomach.

Eating Excrement

It's "surprisingly normal" for dogs to eat excrement, Reid says. It's part of their evolution. In the early domestication stage, dogs performed a hygienic function cleaning up feces. Their digestive system is very efficient so, they can get some

Noise Phobia

Dogs that cover in the corner at every crack of thunder could be suffering from a noise phobia. Other common triggers are sirens and gunshots. Noise phobias can be severe and difficult to treat. "Many people want too long for help," Reid says. Through conditioning programs, such as engaging in positive activities during recordings of thunderstorms, dogs can learn to relax when they hear upsetting sounds.

Paw Licking

Dogs lick their paws as part of their normal grooming behavior, Reid explains. But if your dog licks so much that the paws lose hair, become discolored or develop open sores, there is clearly a problem. The top causes of excessive licking are yeast infections and skin allergies. In some cases, licking can be a compulsive behavior. But it's important to see the veterinarian and rule out the medical issues before reaching that conclusion.

Glow-in-the-Dark Eyes

No, your dog is not possessed. Canine eyes naturally glow in the dark to varying degrees, because their structure differs from that of human eyes. Dogs have a layer of tissue called the tapetum lucidum, which reflects light back through the retina. This is one reason canines have better night vision than people do.

Dreaming

Your dog is curled up in bed, eyes shut and paws twitching. Every now and then, a soft whine or yowl breaks the silence. You would swear Rex is dreaming. You're probably right, Reid says. "If you look at a dog's brainwaves during sleep, they appear to have REM cycles." REM or rapid eye movement is the stage of sleep during when humans tend to dream. So what do dogs dream about? That is one secret our four-legged friends get to keep.

Dog Behavior: What's Normal?

What is Normal for a Dog?

From chasing their own tails to humping your leg, dog behaviors can seem downright weird-if you happen to be human. Many quirky habits in dogs, though a few may suggest hidden medical problems. To learn the difference, Pamela Reid, PhD, vice-president of the ASPCA's Animal Behavior Center, has decoded a range of puzzling canine customs.

Crotch Sniffing

Dogs like to sniff each other's bottoms, but what about a pooch nosing up to a human crotch? That's just bad manners, right? Not according to the canine code of conduct "Dogs can tell an enormous amount of information about other dogs by sniffing the genital area, Reid says. "There's good reason to think they get this information by sniffing people too." If your dog's nose nose mortifies your guests, obedience training may help.

Tail Chasing

When puppies chase their tails, it's like babies grabbing their toes – a way to explore their bodies. "It's only a problem when dogs become compulsive about it, Reid says. "The litmus test is whether or not you can distract them." If your dog would rather chase it's tail than eat or go for a walk, it's no longer fun and games. Compulsive disorder is common in certain breeds. It can be treated with behavior modification and medication.

Scotting

It's common for dogs to scoot or drag their bottoms across the ground after doing their business - particularly if their stool is loose. But, if a dog scoots frequently throughout the day, Reid recommends an immediate trip to the veterinarian. Scotting is often a sign of impacted anal glands, a condition that can have serious complications if left untreated.
